Driving out the Risks - Back to Basics!	Tuesday 19 Apr '11 Hong Kong	Why is it that 'the risk that happens' is never on the risk register? Risk management in projects is a much talked about and vital process, yet practices vary widely. Risk identification at start-up is not enough; the management of risk must be a continual process. Research has shown that organizations that can make the leap from qualitative to quantitative risk management can demonstrate considerable improvements in project outcomes. This workshop will explore the basic techniques of risk: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Identification • Categorisation • Contingency allocation • Management
When the Knowledge Walks out the Door – Managing an Aging Workforce	Thursday 28 Jul '11 Brisbane	Despite the efforts of governments to increase retirement ages and to provide incentives for people to remain in the workforce, many organizations are facing the grim reality of 25-40% of their workforce leaving due to age over the next 5-10 years. This workshop will share the problems and strategies being implemented by organizations to capture lessons learned and organizational knowledge from individuals while they still can, for retaining staff as long as possible, and for developing new potential.
Program Management – Differentiating Projects and Programs	Thursday 26 May '11 Melbourne	Program management has emerged as a critical component in the value chain for project, program and portfolio management. However program management is still in its infancy with many organizations internally processing how best to incorporate programs into their existing project management capability. This workshop will explore some of the common questions project management professionals are asked about program management including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What is a program? • How do program managers differ from project managers? • How do we develop good program managers? • What does a program management methodology look like?

Burned and Learned: War Stories from the Front Line of Project Management	Thursday 15 Sept '11 Sydney	Getting projects across the line can often feel like being in a warzone for the project manager. It is often through these battles that we learn the most, and the best managers come out the other side with the scars to prove it. This workshop will focus on project managers sharing their personal stories of projects that have been instrumental in their learning.
11TH ANNUAL GLOBAL WORKSHOP	Tues/Wed 1/2 Nov '11 Hong Kong	This invitation-only workshop will bring together senior executives from member organizations across our global Networks. Over these 2 days, we will analyse the concept of complexity and look at the impact that levels of complexity have for our organizations.
From Models to Reality: Making Complexity Real		An abundance of models for understanding project complexity have emerged. The challenge for any organization is to operationalize these models to derive value. At this Global Workshop, we will focus on understanding the sources of complexity, the different perspectives on complexity and the range of responses at organizational, governance and project levels.
Is your Organization Ready for Change?	Wednesday 30 Nov '11 Melbourne	Understanding the context and environment into which projects must be delivered is an essential prerequisite to success. The benefits of change frequently lie in changing the behaviour of the 'victims of change'. Ensuring they are on your side has a huge impact on project outcomes. This workshop will explore techniques for measuring organizational readiness for change, change management competencies and stories from the frontline about effective change programs.
